New Jersey Agriculture: A Bibliography

Special Collections and University Archives contains a wealth of primary and secondary resources relating to New Jersey agriculture. This bibliography reflects a broad range of materials—everything from account books, diaries, and journals to manuscript collections, trade catalogs, and yearbooks.

State and federal documents on the subject from 1851 to the present may generally be found at either the Alexander Library or the Library of Science and Medicine.

Please alert us to additional relevant items, new or old. Budget permitting, we will make every effort to acquire them. A bibliography is always a work in progress . . .

Cynthia Hammell compiled the entries. David Kuzma undertook the tedious task of verification, formatting and editing. Caryn Radick, our editor-in-chief, did the final edit. Thanks to each of them on an excellent bibliography. Don Sinclair would approve!

Printed copies of this bibliography will be available for the agricultural exhibit, Garden State Harvest: New Jersey's Agricultural Heritage. An online version will be accessible on our website.

Whitney, Susan, b. 1839. Diary, November 1, 1856–April 26, 1857 and January 1, 1868–September 2, 1872 (with gaps). The entries from the 1850s reveal Whitney's interest in activities at the Perth Amboy, NJ, Baptist Church where she taught a small class of African-American children, while other entries pertain to household, family and local affairs. The entries beginning in the late 1860s (which are fairly regular through 1869 and thereafter have gaps of increasing length) often note the weather and usually chronicle domestic tasks, family life and social visits. Whitney frequently notes that her health is poor and constantly remarks on how busy she is (as she not only kept house, but also eventually helped with many of the farm chores as well). In addition, she records her reflections, which are usually of a religious nature. The diary ends five days before her brother Benjamin's wedding to Emaline Tunison of New Brunswick. Also included in the volume is an account, recording farm receipts and expenses, which was evidently recorded by Whitney and not by her brother. 1 vol. and 1 item. MC 702

Wikoff, Rulif, b. 1863. Diary, January 27, 1885–October 4, 1886 and October 17, 1888–March 26, 1890, of a young man which provides a complete record of farm life and of much social and family activity—constant visiting among relatives and friends throughout Monmouth County, New Jersey (and sometimes beyond, e.g., New York City), and attendance at church and other meetings. 2 vols. MC 74

Williamson, Abraham Tenbrook. Farm accounts, 1737–1857, Hunterdon County, NJ. Includes daybook entries, May 1775(or 6?)–March 6, 1787 (incorporating sales of gristmill products), ledger accounts, 1770–1786, and a record of the hauling of unnamed supplies for the Continental

Army between various locales in New Jersey by his team and teamsters; loose accounts, 1791–1803, recording expenses and stud fees for several horses; and returns, lists, warrants, accounts and receipts, 1787–1804, relating to service as paymaster of the 4th Regiment, Hunterdon County Militia. 510 items. Included in Williamson Family Papers, MC 667.
